Language Arts: Welcome to 4th quarter! We are in full review mode this quarter with an emphasis on completing an independent research project. They will use all that they have learned throughout the school year to read carefully to learn new information, annotate and take notes, decide what information is most important, write a research essay using the writing process, and then present what they've learned. We will be busy! Along with this, we will be reviewing with reading passages through homework and daily work to keep practicing using our reading strategies and getting used to the question format.

Poem Recitations April 30th

*Please help make time for homework after school; it's so important to have time to review, read (books on level), and practice the skills that we need to master this school year.

Social Studies: Welcome to the Civil War! We are studying the Civil War time period and the great people and events that were part of this. As we move forward, we will integrate many of the reading and content into our ELA class too. Their research project will be based upon their SS curriculum this year.

Science: We will finish weather this week and move on to Energy Conservation and Heat Transfer. We will have a unit test after that. I have posted weather videos in Google Classroom for the students to view. This is a process that will take about an hour today. Please make sure your child is viewing these videos.
